

Mike Woeber is based in CTA corporate office in Huntsville, Alabama.

Mike began his career in 1989 working on the auditing team with Ernest & Young in Birmingham, Alabama. He focused on financial statement audits of publicly traded manufacturers, technology, and healthcare companies. After two years in audit, Mike joined E&Y's tax group and move to their Huntsville, office.

It was during his early years in Huntsville that he began advising privately held businesses on a variety of accounting and tax matters. This included financial statement audits, business tax preparation, and individual tax preparation. It was during Mike's 15 years as a tax partner with a regional firm that he began focusing on the research and development tax credit incentive.

In 2014, Mike and a group of close associates formed Corporate Tax Advisors, inc., with the goal of creating a national business that was "not a traditional CPA firm"

The purpose of CTA, as it has always been, is to operate solely as a specialty tax consulting firm focusing solely on assisting companies in identifying potential tax credits and unique tax strategies. These include research & development, renewable energy, and employment tax credits.
